Using Evidence in Policy and Practice
Lessons from Africa
Edited by Ian Goldman and Mine Pabari
Series: Rethinking Development

This book asks how governments in Africa can use evidence to improve their policies and programmes, and ultimately, to achieve positive change for their citizens. Looking at how different evidence sources are used across a range of contexts, the book brings policy makers and researchers together to uncover what does and doesn’t work and why. This book will be perfect for policy-makers, practitioners in government and civil society, and researchers and academics with an interest in how evidence can be used to support policy making in Africa.

Reviews

“The participation of my ministry in the research and writing of this book has been a great opportunity to mobilise the key stakeholders in the agriculture sector around the importance of evaluation and the incomparable benefits of developing public policy based on evidence.” — Bonaventure Kouakanou, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, Benin

“I highly recommend this book. It is a cogent analysis of why all policy-makers ought to use evidence and citizen engagement, routinely, to improve decision-making.” — Judi Wakhungu, EGH, Kenya Ambassador to France, Portugal, Serbia & Holy See; previously Cabinet Secretary, Ministry of Environment and Natural Resources

“Profiling the work of policy-makers to use evidence in their decision-making is so important, and the world has much to learn from our experiences in Africa. This book makes a valuable contribution for all of us working to support better decisions based on better evidence.” — Ruth Stewart, Africa Centre for Evidence, University of Johannesburg, South Africa; Chair, Africa Evidence Network
